Third age travel without worry

Medical support for group and individual travellers

HEALTH+ESCORT provides “the doctor at your side” worldwide

More than 400,000 Germans annually fall ill or suffer accidents while on holiday or on business trips. In such cases when they occur abroad, effective medical care is not always guaranteed. Language problems often hinder treatment, while important information to secure optimum return transport is often lacking.

Especially for the older generation and for those with health problems, travelling involves increased risks for which up to now many travel agents have not been sufficiently prepared. For travellers, however, safety must be a key consideration.

The Berlin agency HEALTH+ESCORT links travellers and travel organisers with qualified doctors with foreign experience and nursing and rescue staff to provide medical care during trips abroad.

All accompanying doctors and trained personnel are carefully selected according to their qualifications, experience abroad and in emergency situations, language skills, etc. In addition, they regularly attend refresher courses. Throughout journeys they are available to provide personal medical attention round the clock. The medical equipment to deal with emergencies matches latest technical demands.

“The doctor at your side” makes regular health checks, gives immediate assistance in emergencies, accompanies patients to hospital and clarifies any medical problems arising and arranges problem-free return transport with ambulance services. The risks of foreign travel are reduced to a minimum. Travel organisers can thus meet the demands of travellers who are older or at risk healthwise.
